Dear Soccer Supporter,

Testing yourself against the best competition. Learning to adjust to foreign environments. Exposing your team to different styles of play. Building for the future.

If that sounds familiar, it's because that is exactly what we do with our U.S. National Teams, from our youngest kids all the way up to the senior teams that compete in the World Cup. U.S. Soccer has long recognized the critical role that playing abroad has in the development of elite players and coaches. Playing soccer internationally offers a unique opportunity for players to develop on multiple levels, where in addition to experiencing great competition overseas, teams can be exposed to new cultures, build camaraderie and learn life lessons that prepare individuals for a better future both on and off the field.

U.S. Soccer is proud to be partners of Premier International Tours, an organization that can help your team reach its soccer goals while providing the experience of a lifetime.

Yours in Soccer,
